The Philadelphia Unnamed Film Festival (PUFF) is a locally run 501(c)(3) non-profit organization dedicated to celebrating local and independent filmmakers and artists. Founded in 2016, PUFF offers an eclectic mix of short and feature length films. We are committed to providing a platform for new and undiscovered films, thereby fostering a diverse and inclusive community for cinema enthusiasts in Philadelphia.

*Girls Like Horror is an inclusive film club that highlights horror films made by women and features strong female protagonists. Founded by Christina Acevedo, the club fosters a community passionate about the horror genre. Christina has organized numerous events that have garnered significant attention, including multiple sold-out events at the Philadelphia Film Society. – @girlslikehorror
